~ Adams calls for Howgego 243b as the map in the 12mo ed but this map is quite definitely Howgego 270 ie that for the 8vo ed. The text and plates are the same in both formats. This copy conforms to Adams in that it has the unlisted plate of Fitzroy Square 'sometimes to be found' but not the Somerset House plate 'not included in any copy seen'. A dozen or so plates show the routes, with a vignette on each of a notable building, and the rest show what will be seen on the way. The woodcuts show mostly architectural details.

~ '... undoubtedly the largest collection of London views to be issued in volume form; in all, 670 subjects engraved on 115 plates'. The small size of the images means that often only part of the building is shown but the quality of engraving is excellent with its sense of openness and perspective.

25. PHILLIPS, R. (publ). The Picture of London for 1802; Being A Correct Guide to All the Curiosities, Amusements, Exhibitions, Public Establishments, and Remarkable Objects, in and near London. 1802, title, pp 3-5 preface, [vi]-xvi index, 1-312, 1-103 Picture, [1] advert, frontis & 3 plates, 2 folding maps (Environs of London, London; Howgego 228, 226), 12mo, for R. Nichols & Son, slightly later half calf, spine gilt, front joint sympathetically renewed, new labels, a clean crisp copy, Adams 98, Abbey 210, £560
~ An important book: the 14thC. paintings, sculpture and glass in St. Stephen's Chapel recorded by Smith had been uncovered in some renovations & were being destroyed as Smith was working. The book is the main source of information for the appearance of the Palace of Westminster before the 1834 fire, and Smith also recorded some of the buildings in the Abbey precincts & other parts now lost. Technically the book is unusual for the range of illustrative techniques used; these include etching, aquatint, mezzotint, woodcut and one lithograph. In the first edition 12 plates are hand coloured; this edition has 11 (Adams says none at all) and plate 74, Foundation Plan of the Antient Palace of Westminster, has an area of hand colouring added to show the extent of the 1834 fire. In all there are 22 more plates than in the first edition.
